

Understanding hail damage to your roof

Hail is one of the most destructive types of weather. Every year, hail causes a wide variety of damage to homes and businesses across the country.

Without proper training, assessing hail damage can be difficult. That's why Travelers Canada claim professionals undergo comprehensive classroom and field-training programs. We want to make sure they have the knowledge and skills needed to assess hail claims.

Has my roof been damaged by hail?

Shingles may react differently when struck by hail. For example, hail damage to asphalt and composition shingles may look very different than hail damage to wood shingles.

The main characteristics of hail damage to asphalt and composition shingles include:

- Random damage with no discernable pattern
- Hail hits that are black in color
- Loss of granules, which may expose the roof felt
- Asphalt and/or mat that appears shiny
- Hail hits that are soft to the touch, like the bruise on an apple

The main characteristics of hail damage to wood shingles include:

- Random damage with no discernable pattern
- A split in the shingle that is brown/orange in color
- A split in the shingle that has sharp corners and edges
- A split in the shingle that has little to no deterioration at the edges
- Impact marks or dents along the splits

Other types of damage to shingles may be mistaken for hail damage. For example, exposure to inclement weather and sunlight makes shingles brittle and gives them an aged appearance. This normal wear and tear of shingles, which is sometimes misidentified as hail damage, may also include:

- Blistering
- Flaking
- Cracking
- Algae
- Granule loss

Manufacturing defects and mechanical imperfections in shingles may also be mistaken for hail damage.

Frequently asked questions

Q: How does Travelers Canada determine if my property sustained hail damage?

A: First, your Travelers Canada claim professional will review weather-related resources to determine if a hailstorm passed through your area and how large the resulting hailstones were.

If you have chosen a contractor to perform repairs, your Travelers Canada claim professional will make every effort to coordinate the inspection of your property with your contractor.

Q: Travelers Canada determined that my property did not sustain hail damage, but my neighbour's property was damaged. Why is that?

A: The type and degree of damage caused by hail to neighbouring homes can vary widely based on a number of factors, including:

- Speed and direction of the wind
